DETAILED ACTION

Restriction/Election Requirement

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. § 121:

- I. Claims 1-8, drawn to a server-client network system for a genotyping analysis, classified in Class 705, subclass 2.
- II. Claims 9-11, drawn to a computer readable medium comprising computer executable instructions, classified in Class 705, subclass 41.

The inventions of groups I-II are distinct because of the following reasons:

Inventions of groups I-II are directed to related products. The related inventions are distinct if the inventions as claimed do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants; and the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the server-client system of group I and the computer readable medium of group II are related because both are involved in genotyping. However, they are distinct because the system of group I comprises server databases and client who receives results of biochip test on target samples and perform genotyping analysis whereas the computer readable medium of group II comprises instructions thereon which instruct a client to receive databases and perform genotyping analysis on target results from a chip test. The importance distinction between the invention of the two groups, besides differences on structures, etc., is that the client in group I “receives” results of biochip test from places other than the client, which action is not in the invention of group II, where the results could be the client's own results. Therefore, clearly, the system in group I and the computer readable medium in group II do not overlap in scope, are not obvious variants, and have different mode of actions, function and effect.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have different classifications, they have acquired a separate status in the art. The search for the two groups requires distinct strategies and thus not coextensive. Therefore, there would be a serious search burden if they were examined together. Restriction for examination purposes as indicated is thus proper.

Applicant is advised that the response to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR § 1.143). Examination cannot proceed without a complete response.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Shubo (Joe) Zhou, whose telephone number is 571-272-0724.
